SCOPES JUDGE LAUDS BRYAN IN TALK HERE

Scores Darrow for Trial Attitude.

BY ORVILLE DWYER

Gathering the facts from the sermon of Judge John T. Raulston at the North Shore Congregational church yesterday, there were three sides to the famous evolution trial of John Thomas Scopes at which the judge presided recently in Dayton, Tenn.

There was the side of William Jennings Bryan, which was the side of fundamentalism; there was the side of Clarence Darrow, which was agnosticism—and then there was the side of Judge Raulston himself.

Scopes Almost Forgotten.

Scopes, the youthful high school instructor convicted of teaching the evolution of man against the Tennessee law, did not come in for so much of the jurist's address. He was almost forgotten in the trial itself, in the larger issues involved.

Judge Raulston paid high tribute to Bryan and his prosecution of the case. He had some astute criticism of Clarence Darrow, his motives, his demeanor, his religion, or lack of it, and his defense. The service was in the form of a memorial to the late Commoner.

He told of the "intolerance and charity" of Bryan in the face of Darrow's attacks, saying he believed Darrow "had it in his heart to destroy" the late Commoner if he could do it.

He's a Fundamentalist.

He preached what his audience, packed in every nook and corner of the large church at Sheridan road and Wilson avenue, appeared to regard as a powerful and touching sermon; and he told the world he is a fundamentalist.

Talk and spare and link after the construction of the Tennessee mountain folk from which he told the assembly he came, he leaned across the pulpit and had this to say about what he was saying:

"I hope what I'm saying now is published in a book, because I'm willing to live and die by it."

Mixture of Modesty, Fire.

This tall, bronzed jurist from the west slopes of the Blue Ridge, is a mixture of modesty and fire, of humility and assertiveness—all by his own speech.

In his high, rather piping voice, he told of his reactions to the famous case he has presided in. He is awed by the "great array of talent"—here in the great Bryan, "whom I met for the first time in the courthouse at Dayton," and there "the acclaimed Mr. Darrow of your city."

"I apprehended that my position would be a difficult one."

Bryan Pleads for Darrow.

But if he is awed he is not moved. He will not, he says, banish prayer from the courtroom on the objection of Darrow, and though Bryan—the great Darrow—comes to him to plead "for mercy" for Darrow—"his adversary"—he has cited for contempt, it was not Bryan's plea that saved Darrow.

Bryan's plea is a key to the character of Bryan, the judge says earnestly. But, no, it wasn't the thing that moved him to forgive Darrow. "The responsibility for that was mine," he says. And his square, bearded chin comes up. "If I did wrong let me suffer the consequences; if I did right let me have the glory."

No Interest in Origin.

"I said at the onset that I am not so much concerned with where my body came from as I am about the destiny of my soul. Except that evolution destroys faith in the Bible, I wouldn't be much concerned about it; it wouldn't make any difference whether we came one way or another."

"I don't believe I am a product of evolution," and then suddenly his face is shaking as he continues: "I don't believe that otherwise, I wouldn't be for them—I could not have been the office that I hold today."

Judge Raulston wants it understood that he is not a Scopes trial man, his convictions set aside.

"Simply," he says, "to determine the truth. That," he continues, "is the paramount issue of every investigation to determine the truth. No man has a right to allow himself to be prejudiced as to obscure the truth."

In this case not the truth of evolution or of the Bible, but simply the issue of whether John Thomas Scopes is guilty or not.

Million Dollar Fire Razes Big Lumber Plant

Fire destroyed a $1,000,000 stock of building materials last night in the two blocks of yards owned by the Harris Brothers company, between 35th and 36th, and Iron and Charlton streets. A 4-11 alarm brought out the greater part of the city's apparatus and police reserves were necessary to hold back the 25,000 persons who gathered. Much of the loss was covered by insurance.

An investigation by Fire Chief Seyferlich and Edward Cammack, the Harris Brothers' fire head, failed to fix the cause of the blaze. There was some ground for believing that it started in the sun heated tar paper roof of a model wooden bungalow, construction of which and of similar buildings, which are sold ready made, constitutes the firm's principal business.

Gasoline Blast Spreads Fire.

The flames ate rapidly into the timber which filled the yard. An hour after the blaze was reported a tank containing 1,600 gallons of gasoline exploded, spewing flaming oil for yards around and hastening the spread of the fire.

The estimate of the loss was made by M. Rothschild, a vice president of the company.

Twenty-six box cars, ten of them containing building material, were destroyed. Several loads of radiators and much piping were, rendered useless by the heat.

Threatens Nearby Buildings.

Through early measures, spread of the fire to several adjacent buildings was prevented. Buildings saved in this manner included the company's offices and storeroom.

Two German police dogs, owned by Walter Moore and Hugo Gole, watchmen, were trapped by flames in the confusion and were burned to death.

Stockyards Police Solve Only Case of Horse Theft

Stockyards police last night had on their blotter the first case of horse theft ever listed there. John Kleck, 50 years old, 4609 South Larkin street, was accused of stealing a horse by a spokesman, by unharassing it from Hammond's wagon while it was standing outside Hammond's home at 4750 South Marshfield avenue. Policemen O'Dell and Craig traced the horse and arrested Kleck when they found he had sold the horse for $55.

REGAIN $50,000 RUGS AS RESULT OF PHONE MIXUP

Police recovered last night $50,000 worth of oriental rugs, believed to have been stolen, as a result of telephone wires becoming crossed during a conversation between Capt. Martin O'Malley and Lieut. Al Christensen, both of the Summerdale station. Two men and a woman were arrested.

While Capt. O'Malley and Lieut. Christensen were talking they overheard a conversation concerning oriental rugs and during the course of it the address, 4866 Broadway, was mentioned. On suspicion that a cache of rugs stolen in recent robberies might be found, Sgt. Jack Tierley led a squad to the Broadway address, at which Earl Gordon operates a transfer and storage business.

The huge stock of rugs was found and hauled to the station. Today officials of O. W. Richardson & Co., 125 South Wabash avenue, which lost $15,000 worth of rugs in a robbery on Aug. 4, and of other concerns from which rugs have been stolen will be asked to attempt to identify their goods among those seized. The three arrested are Gordon, his wife, Dora, and Henry Adams, 4527 Calumet avenue.

5,000 Watch Canoe Upset, Youth Drown

While 5,000 bathers looked on, helpless to aid, Stanley Bajek of 1948 South Trumbull avenue was drowned yesterday afternoon when the canoe in which he and Stanley Maruszek, 2218 West 18th place, were boating overturned nearly half a mile off the Lawrence avenue beach. Maruszek clung to the canoe and was rescued by Robert Tannehill, a guard from the Wilson avenue beach.

Two other deaths at bathing beaches were reported during the day. Robert Vogt, a Chicagoan, was drowned near Waukegan, and Henry Lovstrand, 23 years old, 3060 Washington boulevard, died when he stepped into a deep hole off 10th street in Wilmette.

Shock Closes Death.

Edward and Paul Brown and Mack De Hay, all of Wilmette, found Lovstrand's body a little later. There was no water in the lungs and Dr. H. O. Wishaar expressed the opinion that he died of shock.

Bajek sank soon after the canoe upset. When Tannehill reached Maruszek he placed the latter in a boat and told him to wait until he was rescued. Maruszek was so excited, however, that he rowed to shore. The coast guard station, nearly half a mile to the south, was notified and a squad was sent to search for the body of the drowned man. At a late hour last night it had not been found.

Student Aids Troubled Yacht.

Hugo Kanitz Jr., high school athlete of Muskegon, Mich., was instrumental in saving William R. Runler and six of his guests on the yacht Sea-call Saturday night when it was beached during a high sea south of Muskegon.

On board the yacht, Kanitz saw that life guards who came to the rescue were unable to cast a line to the vessel, which was being severely pounded by the waves. He dived in, swam to the life boat and carried the line back to the Runler yacht. It was hauled into Muskegon harbor.

Master Commits Suicide by Gas; Dog in Room Licks

Police of the Sheffield avenue station and Bremen of Squad 10 responding last night to a report that gas was escaping from the flat occupied by August Lane, 34 years old, 2953 Clybourn avenue, forced a door of the apartment and found Lane's body on the kitchen floor in a sitting posture, with his faithful fox terrier, alive at his feet. Despondency over ill health was believed to have caused him to commit suicide.

INDICTMENTS IN ALIEN PROPERTY SCANDAL SEEN

Coolidge, Sargent Discuss Inquiry.

BY GUY M'KINNEY.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Swampscott, Mass., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—Reports that the grand jury will be asked to vote indictments shortly in connection with the department of justice investigation of the alien property custodian's office developed here today, following the visit at White Court last Friday of Attorney General Sargent. Several persons are said to be involved. Although no announcement was made by the attorney general at that time, it is reported that developments in the investigation of the custodian's office were one of the major subjects of discussion at the conference between Mr. Sargent and the President.

From the time President Coolidge took office he has been determined to clean up the alien property situation, which has been the subject of rumor and speculation for years. It is understood that one of the main jobs handed to Attorney General Sargent when he took office was the investigation of this department to see if reports submitted to the President were founded on fact.

Trace American Metals Co. Bonds.

The decision of the President to speed up the investigation followed the developments in the American Metals company case as a result of the work of agents of the department of justice. It was reported that a Swiss group of stockholders in the metal company had returned to them assets of $6,483,979. Liberty bonds amounting to $200,000, which at one time formed a part of these assets of the metal company, it was reported were traced to Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian; John T. King of New York, former Republican committee man from Connecticut; and the late Jesse Smith, friend of former Attorney General Daugherty.

Sees Budget Director Today.

The investigation covers reports of graft and mismanagement in the handling of alien properties since the war. Frederick C. Hicks, manager of the eastern division for the Republican party in the last campaign, was recently placed in charge of the alien property custodian's office and is represented as being now engaged in thoroughly investigating the intricacies of the past management of the office.

With the arrival of Director of the Budget Lord tomorrow, President Coolidge will have an opportunity of learning what progress had been made in figuring out the estimates of expenditures for the various departments for the 1927-28 budget.

In the case of the army and navy, the President asked that each department make a survey and determine what effect a cut from $17,000,000 to $20,000,000 would have on their departments.

New Also to Come.

Postmaster General Harry S. New will arrive to discuss postal matters with the President some time this week, it was announced today. The Secretary of Commerce Hoover left this afternoon.

President Coolidge attended church at the Salem Congregational church again today and listened to a sermon by the Rev. Robert W. McLaughlin of Worcester.

FATHER SHOTS DOWN ESCORT OF DAUGHTER

Robert Killian of 7917 Avalon avenue was probably fatally wounded last night at 9450 Commercial avenue when he was fired on several times by John Gascola, 10657 Hoxie avenue, with whose daughter, Muriel, a telephone operator at the Hyde Park exchange, he was walking at the time. Killian was taken to the South Chicago hospital, and the father and daughter to the South Chicago police station. There Muriel said that her father had forbidden her to go with Killian.

Cinderella Runs Away to New Role

New York, Aug. 9.—(Special.)—Mary Louise Spas deserted Edward R. Browning tonight without the formality of a good-bye.

Facing annulment of her adoption by the wealthy broker, the ringletted miss who had insisted she was 16 despite her parents' admission that she was 21, accepted a movie-newspaper agent's promise to get her into the movies and let her write for the newspapers—an inducement backed up by the sight of $500 in nice new bills—and tripped gaily out of the haven the millionaire had provided for her.

Her laughing exit came after several hours of argument between the agent, Mr. Browning, and Mary Louise in the Queens home of Robert H. Dunnet.

He's Through With Her.

"I wash my hands of her," Mr. Browning said tonight. "I've tried to help her out but I've been double-crossed enough. I'm through."

When Mary came into my office the first time, soon after I announced I wanted to adopt another daughter, she told me she was fifteen. I believe now she is an accomplished actress, for she seemed so convincing and asked me if I was 15 was 15 old.

"She came back again later and again said she was 15. I believed her and placed her in the Rayson school. After she had gone there, she told us she would be 16 on July 31. I asked her then if she went out with the boys and she said she did not. She said she did not like boys. When boys came forward after her adoption and made statements to the newspapers, I asked her if their statements were true. She denied they were—and I believed her. I always believed her—that's the trouble."

Said She Wanted to be Nun.

"She told me she wanted to be a nun and I promised to help her enter a convent. Others who heard her make this statement laughed and I wondered why they laughed. She's a smart little girl. She turned against me tonight in a minute."

"I've done all I could to help her. I refused to believe she had lied about her age until the last minute. I'll never adopt anybody else—never. I'm through adopting girls. Mary Louise can have the dresses and presents I bought her if she wants them. They're hers. I'm through, however. I'm tired of being roasted for doing good."

During the argument with the movie-newspaper agent, Mary Louise faced her friendly counselors with the reiterated defiance:

"I'm twenty-one and you can't stop me. I can go if I want to."

This, from Cinderella's own lips, for the first time came adoption girls, the trickery she had resorted to.

Not Even a Goodbye.

"She would not listen to advice or counsel. She walked away without even saying goodbye," Mr. Browning declared after Mary Louise laughingly jumped into a taxi and was driven away. "I really think I was winning her over until that agent produced $500 in bills. Mary Louise seemed to make her decision at once."

"You have a hard time being honest and telling the truth in this world. If you do some one is sure to double-cross you. I lost $20,000 in trying to make that girl my foster daughter."

Browning had placed the girl in the home of Mr. Dunnet, his business associate, last night pending the outcome of the application to vacate the adoption which he is to make tomorrow to Queens county surrogate Daniel A. Noble.

Mary Louise tonight was understood to be in hiding at the behest of the newspaper feature syndicate which had promised to buy her own story of her week in the lap of luxury. As she is 21 years of age it was indicated that no steps would be taken to halt her new venture.

MURDER REVEALS KILLING AND HOAX TO GRAB $100,000

Hunted Chemist Ends Life in Police Trap.

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Charles Henry Schwartz, Walnut Creek chemist, killed himself in an apartment here today as police were battering in the door to arrest him for the murder of the man whose charred body was found on the sidewalk last night of July 30.

This ended a nation-wide search for Schwartz, who at first was believed to have been the victim of the explosion.

Police later questioned this theory and had started a hunt for the chemist. Schwartz left a letter to his wife, advising that he had slain a man, whose name he did not seem to know. The authorities are convinced that the man was Gilbert Warren Barstow, insurance agent, son of the late John Barstow of Jersey Shore, Pa.

Carried $100,000 Insurance.

Schwartz carried more than $100,000 in insurance, some policies of the type that pay double indemnity in case of accidental or violent death. His wife insisted that it was the body of her husband.

The end of Schwartz's flight came in a casual way. C. W. Hayward, proprietor of the Oakland apartment house where the chemist took refuge, was attending a dinner party last night.

The conversation veered to the Schwartz mystery. Somebody produced a newspaper photograph of the chemist. Hayward studied the countenance. Then he rushed to telephone the police.

Schwartz had in his pocket a ticket to Barstow, southeastern California, and around the ticket was a map of Mexico. He had $572 in currency. The letter he left was addressed to his wife and three children.

"I am not guilty of the crime they accuse me of," he wrote. "Last Monday or Tuesday a man called at the factory for work. I was in the lab. He talked to each other for a while, then suddenly he told me if I wouldn't give him work I would have to give him money."

"He attacked me. I gave him a blow on the head. He fell. I gave him another. I decided to run away. But made a dirty job of it."

Wife Breaks Down. Mrs. Schwartz collapsed when notified of her husband's suicide. Schwartz, a native of Germany, was general manager of the Pacific Cellular company at Walnut Creek, near Berkeley, north of here. His home was near his laboratory.

The apparent identification of the body as that of Barstow came through the discovery of three religious books and part of a letter in the laboratory. Barstow traveled for a Pentecostal mission, had been a war veteran, a college student, and a migratory laborer. He had been missing since late in July from the vicinity of Los Gatos, Cal., where he lived.

Church Hears Judge Lyle and Indorses His Methods. The congregation of the Chicago Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, St. Louis avenue and 63d street, yesterday heard an address by Judge John Lyle on his methods in the suppression and prevention of crime, after which the resolutions committee of the church passed a resolution endorsing the judge's policies and urging Chief Justice Olson of the Municipal court to keep him on the criminal bench.

Boys Play with Matches; Three Buildings Ignited. Two small boys, playing with matches under a porch at 5209 Westworth avenue yesterday, started a fire that for a time threatened to destroy the building and two others adjacent. The flames spread to the porches and eaves of the roofs. John Bender, 8 years old, 5209 Westworth avenue, and Junior Gibson, a neighbor, are the boys.

DRINK CRAZED DAD SLAYS SON, JUST MARRIED

Farmer Collapses on Learning of Death.

Ralph Drummond, 23 years old, took his bride of two weeks to the home of his parents near Gray's Lake, Ill., late Saturday night. Instead of the welcome he expected he found his father, George Drummond, moonshine crazed and quarrelsome.

Bitter words passed and re-passed. Then the crazed father, seizing a shotgun, shot and killed Ralph as the frightened bride and the mother of the younger man looked on. Herbert Drummond, another son of George, and his wife were present also.

After the killing the elder Drummond, who is 57 years old and combines farming with house painting as his means of livelihood, fled to the home of his son-in-law, Thomas Mogg. There he was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff Allen McMillen of Lake County. He asked, dully, about the condition of his son.

Collapses at Word of Death. "O, God," he cried, "I didn't want to hurt him." Then the killer collapsed. When he was taken to the Weuegan jail and questioned he was unable to tell a coherent story. The liquor still clogged his mind.

It was the version of Herbert that was given credence. He said that Ralph had been living near Oak Park and that when his marriage was announced there had been congratulations from all the members of the family. The father Saturday night started to celebrate the homecoming by getting drunk.

Ralph and his bride arrived in an automobile with another couple. This pair did not go in, but drove on George Drummond was angered at this. Why, he asked, couldn't his son bring his friends in? Were they top good for the old farm house?

Women Lock Room with Gun. The bridegroom explained, patiently, that his friends had a long drive ahead and could not spare the time. The father, growing more angry, ran to his bedroom, where his shotgun was kept. Some of the women, fearing that he would become violent, had locked the door.

"I'll show you," cried the enraged father. Then he ran outside, jerked the screen from a window and stepped in. Thrust the weapon through the window, he dared his sons to come and take it from him.

Ralph, emboldened by the presence of his wife, stepped forward and seized the muzzle. There was an explosion and the charge struck him full in the chest. He fell, dying, into the arms of Herbert.

Held Because He Has Star and Clothes Much Too Big. F. J. Havlin, no address, couldn't explain what he was doing with a South Dakota deputy sheriff's badge in his suitcase when he was picked up yesterday near the Victoria hotel on suspicion by Sergeants McKenna and Fox of the detective bureau. The detectives found in his possession a suit of clothes six sizes too big for him and two hotel baggage checks. F. J. O'Neill of Gettysburg, S. D., whose name was found on the star, was notified.

Bombs Alarm Gold Coast; It's Italian Celebration

Residents of the Gold Coast were alarmed last night by a series of bomb explosions on the near north side. The police investigated and reported, as on Saturday night, that Little Italy was celebrating a feast day and that all the bombs were merely for noise-making purposes.

NONSTOP RECORD PLANE TO FLY ACROSS ATLANTIC

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.) PARIS, Aug. 9.—Plans for a flight across the Atlantic ocean in the giant Farman Goliath plane in which the French aviators, Drouhin and Landry, broke the world's nonstop record yesterday, are being made here by M. Farman, the maker of the plane. The flight is to be made in a few weeks.

In setting the new record the two French flyers covered a distance greater than they would have had to cover to cross the Atlantic. Their mark is set at 4,400 kilometers, or 2,732 miles, which they covered in forty-five hours twelve minutes, flying over a course between Chartres and Etampes. Actually, they flew more than 4,400 kilometers, for during the last two hours they remained over the Chartres aerodrome. This distance was not counted.

The giant, single-motored plane carried 1,321 gallons of gasoline and fifty-three gallons of oil, and food sufficient for fifty hours. When the plane landed early this morning only two gallons of gasoline remained in the tank.

CLOTHES STOLEN, HOW CAN YOU ABIDE BY LAW? Rex Rosenberg and Edward Evans of Marcus, Ia., yesterday violated Chief of Police Collins' edict concerning inland strolling about of persons in uncovered bathing suits.

As they walked from the lake at Bellevue place to Chicago avenue and toward the Chicago Avenue Police station a crowd gathered behind them. Bets were made about what would happen when the pair arrived at the station.

Rosenberg and Evans, however, walked in to the desk and explained. They had parked their automobile and their clothing near the lake. In Chicago, clothing and car were gone. A sergeant guessed they couldn't be blamed for walking about in bathing suits only and threw a blanket over them while they waited for a taxicab to take them to 1714 Crilly court, where they are visiting.

STREET CAR INJURIES FATAL. Sophie Higinbotham, colored, 52, 1448 Welland street, died yesterday at the Henry hospital of injuries incurred several days ago, when she was struck by a street car.

PLAN TO INVEST OVER BILLION IN CHICAGO UTILITIES

Estimate Made for Period of 25 Years.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

A new Chicago, expanded and enlarged, stretching over 1,750 square miles more or less, and extending into three states, has been thought out and outlined. Indeed, in some respects, it has been planned. It will be built; and it will be built well, if those who hold public office and those who dispense public jobs will permit.

It will be a metropolitan area, spread out but knit together, varied in character but correlated in welfare, on a radius of about 35 miles from the loop, in which will live 5,000,000 persons by 1950. A glimpse of its population and extent was presented in yesterday's TRIBUNE.

A study of the metropolitan district has been made by each public utility of the city and surrounding territory. Within the 1,750 square miles each utility interest will give its best service; so that roughly that may be considered metropolitan Chicago, although electric and phone interests will spread out much farther.

Planned by Utility Interests.

That is the plan referred to. It is one developed by the engineers, statisticians, builders, and financiers of the utility interests—the men who control, operate, extend, and enlarge a combined business which now has nearly $350,000,000 of invested capital.

In the new city these same interests expect to invest $1,250,000,000 more. In this community they believe they will invest in the next 25 years much more than they have invested in the last 75. They plan an investment of $154,24 to supply phone, gas, electricity, local passenger transportation, and like services for each man, woman, and child of the anticipated 5,000,000 inhabitants.

These utilities think they have made the best estimates which are humanly possible at this stage of the science of forecasting. They have not pretended to treat, remodel, or revamp the sands and ridge of the north shore, the beautifully rolling country of Du Page County on the west, the heavily wooded Palos hills of the southwest, the sweeping high levels of the Flossmoor district on the south, or the lowlands of the Calumet area closer in.

Figure Start of Work. Instead, each utility has made a careful and conscientious survey to ascertain what extensions and expansions should be made, and approximately the year when the construction should start. These hard-headed business men of the utilities have had the trend of business and manufacturing investigated, and the direction and extent of residence construction inquired into. Considering they have fixed up this location and that, its present merits, its adaptability, and formed a

BOTH EMPLOYMENT AND PRODUCTION FOR JUNE SHOW DECLINE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—

Production of basic commodities and factory employment over the country declined further in June, the federal reserve board said tonight in its monthly review, but railway freight shipments and the volume of wholesale trade increased.

Wholesale prices, after declining for two months, advanced 1.4 per cent. The largest increase for any commodity group was for the miscellaneous, which includes crude rubber. Prices of farm products, foods, and fuel and lighting also advanced. The decline in the production of basic commodities was placed at one per cent, bringing it to the lowest level since last autumn. This production, however, was 17 per cent above the time and point of last summer during the presidential campaign.

Factory employment declined one per cent, and factory pay rolls fell off more than two per cent between May 15 and June 15, reflecting substantial declines in the automobile, boot and shoe, textile, and iron and steel industries.

judgment on its ultimate use.

They have made their estimates of how many new people will be in this district in a certain period of time and how many and what kind of factories will be in another. Then the whole question of increase in population has been studied in careful detail.

Estimates Are Combined.

The net result is that each utility has selected its own metropolitan district and estimated the need for new capital accordingly. Then for the first time in the history of Chicago those estimates have been combined. Then comes forth a figure so large that only a congressman can trippingly rip it off his tongue.

Taking 1920 as a basis for reckoning, the investments in the next 20 years will be 22 times what they were in telephone, gas, electricity and local transportation 20 years ago. In the area in 1920, with its population of 3,583,000, the utility investments was about $750,000,000. In 1920, when the population is expected to be 5,000,000, the utilities now believe they will have $2,250,000,000 invested. For dividends alone, at 6½ per cent, the annual earnings on that sum must total $145,300,000.

It is the first time since Chicago was incorporated that a correlated effort by substantial business men has been made to look at Chicago's future. An impression of the enormity of our task is conveyed by a summary of the utility forecast of population and investments in other than railroads and waterways, as follows:

ACTUAL FIGURES.

Year. Population. Investment.

1900.....1,140,000.....$185,000,000

1905.....1,150,000.....205,000,000

1910.....2,319,000.....518,000,000

1920.....3,583,000.....749,000,000

FORECAST FIGURES.

1940.....4,445,000.....1,212,000,000

1950.....5,000,000.....1,658,000,000

1960.....6,000,000.....2,306,000,000

Must Raise $1,250,000,000.

That short table shows that the utilities believe they will have to raise $1,250,000,000 of new capital in the next two and a half decades. They are ready and eager to go, except passenger transportation. Politics has interfered with its proper development for many years and is still a stumbling block to needed extensions and expansions in service. Other utilities have not been interfered with much by the "issues" of sundry political campaigns.

The extent to which politics has played havoc with local transportation in the last 25 years is clearly indicated by the comparative investment growth during that period. In the stretch between 1900 and 1925, the local transportation investment in the whole metropolitan area was $179,000,000. That is comparable with $485,000,000 invested in the other public utilities.

In the fifteen year period between 1910 and 1925, the local transportation investment was $76,000,000 as against $255,000,000 for other utilities in the same territory. In the five year period between 1920 and 1925, the transportation investment was $20,000,000 as contrasted with $180,000,000 for other utilities. Of the $20,000,000, only $7,000,000 went into surface and rapid transit properties. No large investment has been made by the Chicago Surface Lines since 1916, nor by the Chicago Rapid Transit company since 1907.

Figures Show Drawbacks.

Those few figures tell the tale of how the metropolitan area has been hindered and injured in the last 25 years. They also indicate what will probably happen to the district in the next 25 years unless the political policy on transit service is modified.

Only one other utility has sagged farther behind than local transportation—waterways. How effectively that has been hogtied to date is indicated by Scrutator in another column of THE TRIBUNE today. While waterways would be a material aid and help in the development of the metropolitan district, they are not so highly essential as local transportation.

There are two main factors in the development of metropolitan Chicago. One is adequate local transportation. Residents of the city proper desire to move out into suburbs or other less congested areas. An average of 3,750 moved out of Chicago annually to other places in Cook county in the decennial period prior to 1920.

The other prime factor to the growth of the metropolitan district is the location of mills, plants, factories, and other industrial concerns.

CHESTER LEVERE MIXES IT WITH WIFE'S TENANT

Chester Levere, 50 year old optimist and strong man of Evanston, mixed it with James J. Ronald, 23 years old, yesterday in a quarrel over tenancy of Mrs. Levere's former flat at 1003 Main street, Evanston. Ronald, who wears a mustache, got the worst of the argument, but swore out a warrant for assault and battery against Levere.

It appears that two weeks ago, when, after a five day courtship, the lady became Mrs. Levere, she rented her apartment to Ronald for $40 a month, with the understanding that he should move out Sept. 1.

Yesterday, Ronald averts, Mrs. Levere ordered him out because she had friends coming and wanted the use of the apartment for them. He stood his ground, and the athletic if elderly husband was called in. The warrant will be served today.

DAWES RETURNS FROM VACATION IN THE ROCKIES

Vice President and Mrs. Dawes, with their two children returned yesterday from a vacation trip in the Rocky mountains.

They attended the frontier days celebration and annual rodeo at Cheyenne, Wyo., where the Vice President reviewed the artillery and cavalry from Fort Russell and helped James Cruse direct a few scenes for a new western picture.

Part of the time was spent fishing at Wagon Wheel Gap, Colo., seventeen miles from a railroad and the nearest town. Mr. Dawes was the guest of Col. A. E. Humphries during the first real vacation he has had in two years, and while at Wagon Wheel Gap fished for mountain trout.

On his return the Vice President refused to be interviewed.

COUNTY MOTOR TOLL MOUNTS TO 448; 2 KILLED

Child and Woman Are the Day's Victims.

Two deaths as a result of automobile accidents yesterday raised the Cook county total for the year to 448.

Harold Platt, 7 years old, 1321 West 31st street, was instantly killed when he was struck, while leaving a west bound 31st street car at Racine avenue, by a car driven by Michael Bright, 3053 Almslie street. Bright, who told the police he was unable to stop his automobile, is being held at the Brighton Park station.

Woman Is Killed.
Mrs. Jessie Cohen, 3643 West Polk street, was struck at Harrison street and Western avenue by a driver who did not stop. She was picked up unconscious and taken to the county hospital, where she died a short while later.

Theresa Dillino, 5 years old, 829 Sholto street, suffered a fractured skull when she was struck in front of her home by an automobile driven by

HANDS OF DEATH

The hands of the clock indicate the number of deaths by autos, guns, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1. Yesterday was the two hundred and twenty-first day of 1925.

Daniel Grice, 715 South Aberdeen street. Grice was held.

Many Others Injured.

Chester Gawron, 11 years old, 1537 Haddon avenue, was seriously injured when he was struck by the car of Louis Medowski, 2559 North Parkside avenue. The latter, who was pulling in to the curb to let a fire engine pass when the accident occurred, was released.

Walter Swajkowski, 12 years old, 1911 West 17th street, was struck and seriously injured at Wood and 14th streets. The driver abandoned his car and fled.

Mrs. Anna Hansen, 59 years old, 5454 Fullerton avenue, was seriously injured when she was struck at Crawford and Armitage avenues by a car driven by John Fox of 2704 North Ashland avenue.

Harry Van Steenberg, 6400 Cottage Grove avenue, was possibly fatally injured when the car he was driving in a 100 mile race at Kalamazoo, Mich., crashed into a fence on the last lap.

BLAME SUICIDE ON INABILITY TO SELL INVENTION

His failure to market an invention, a device to improve talking machines, is believed by police to have caused the suicide of Hugo Spengler, 69 years old, 1015 East 54th place, whose body was found Saturday night in his gas filled workshop.

A telegram was found on the old man's workbench a few feet from the body. The telegram, dated a week ago, curtly informed Spengler that an eastern manufacturer was not interested in the appliance he had fashioned during his spare hours. Spengler was a retired public accountant.

Finding of the body resulted when Mrs. F. J. Schroter, 5244 Greenwood avenue, received a telegram from Mrs.

Spengler saying she had not heard from her husband for a month. Dr. A. H. Bowers, 5214 Greenwood avenue, believed Spengler had been dead for three days.

Detective Bureau Added to Evanston Police Force

William A. Wiltberger, Evanston's new chief of police, has organized a detective bureau, which will operate on practically the same lines as the Chicago bureau. It has eight members and is equipped with motor transportation. Sgt. Fred Toenies, for nine years a member of the Evanston force, will head the bureau. Several years ago he engaged in a single handed pistol battle at the Dempster street elevated station with three robbers, wounding two and forcing the third to surrender.

FASCISTS MAKE ENVOYS SPIES TO FORCE PRESS GAG

Refuse to Let World Know Truth of Dictatorship.

Mr. Seldes has just been expelled by the Fascist government in Italy for his fearless exposure of conditions there. He has arrived in Paris, where, free of censorship, he has no restraint on his exposure of the facts as he sees them.

BY GEORGE SELDES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 9.—Over populated, grain hungry Italy, encircled by nations equally ambitious for power and territory, depends greatly on public opinion in Europe and the United States. That is why the Fascist dictatorship attempts to control the world's public opinion by completely suppressing its own unfavorable news papers and terrorizing the entire foreign press representation.

There is one big difference between the tactics of the Fascists and those of the Bolsheviks. The Bolshevik despotism allows only communistic papers to be published; Fascist Italy, making a great bluff at fairness, permits the opposition to print newspapers, but suppresses an average of five issues weekly each.

Tries to Justify Policy.

That fascism fears European and American opinion is shown in Premier Mussolini's recent telegrams to certain newspapers trying to justify his policy. But while Premier Mussolini protests that there is no suppression of liberty in Italy, his head of the foreign office, Sig. Grandi, almost weekly calls newspaper representatives to his office and warns them to change their tactics. Recently Sig. Grandi told the British ambassador that the London Times was offending fascism. The British ambassador promptly called the London Times correspondent and suggested that he write favorably on fascism.

The correspondent informed his editor, who sent the following telegram: "Tell the British ambassador to mind his own business. We know ours."

Warns Correspondents.

Recently a great Buenos Aires newspaper printed an interview with Sig. Grandi, leader of the opposition written by a Spaniard. Inasmuch as the Argentine paper receives an American service, a representative of the latter was called to the foreign office by Sig. Grandi, who warned him that the fascists disapproved of newspaper men interviewing any but fascist politicians.

In addition, there is always a chance of assault through "mistaken identity" and arrest. As pointed out, Rome, Milan, and Naples were kept quiet during the elections but the countryside was terrorized. In the last elections two correspondents went to the countryside and both were arrested. Their names cannot be given, inasmuch as both are still working in Italy, and therefore would be endangered, but both were told to keep away from the villages where the fascists were working in the open.

When the fascists passed the new press gag law the question of the safety of British subjects was taken

FASCIST WATCHDOGS KEEP ON THE TRAIL OF CORRESPONDENT

Revelations concerning the muzzling of foreign newspaper correspondents in Italy by the fascist regime are contained in a letter to THE TRIBUNE from a correspondent of a London newspaper in Italy. The letter was in reply to a query from Mr. Steele, asking about George Seldes, Tribune correspondent, who was recently expelled from Italy by the fascists.

The letter says: "I saw Mr. Seldes only once, but I knew something of his troubles. The fact is he was what we should consider in America too good and too live a journalist, and despotic governments, like that of the fascists, don't like it. 'The life of a journalist in Italy, you know, is not particularly pleasant just now. I myself have had occasion several times to realize it. Last year for several weeks I had two carabinieri at my house door and two big policemen were drawn up on my movements as if I were a conspirator. Now all of the letters of foreign journalists are detained for days.'" up by parliament in London. In the minutes of parliament is the following interpolation: "Is the government aware of the new Italian press law and its changes to British subjects, and what is the government doing for protection?"

Austen Chamberlain replied: "The government is aware of it, but believes the press law is an Italian internal matter."

For reprinting these two paragraphs all the Italian newspapers were suppressed for one day.

In order to control public opinion throughout the world, especially in such times as the Italian-American debt negotiations, Premier Mussolini sent an order virtually making spies out of the Italian ambassadors and consuls everywhere. Especial instructions were given the Chicago consulate to report everything the Chicago newspapers say. Premier Mussolini and

NEGRO LABOR MEET RED PLOT, A. F. OF L. SAYS

Fostered by Moscow, Green Warns.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—A warning was issued today by Negro members of labor unions throughout the country by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, not to attend a so-called "American Negro labor congress" to be held in Chicago on Oct.

55. He declared the A. F. of L. "has not and will not approve of such a congress," because it is being fostered by the communists. The purpose of the gathering, he maintains, is to mislead colored workmen into believing that "all their grievances will be remedied by overturning the government of the United States and establishing a soviet republic."

To 5th Race Hatred.

"Communism in America is comparable to the boll weevil in the cotton fields," President Green said. "The congress called by the workers (communist) party will not be held to benefit the Negro, but to instill into the lives of that race the most pernicious doctrine—race hatred."

The originators of the congress have headquarters in Chicago. They conduct a number of communist organizations, with interlocking directorates, that work under the direction of Moscow.

Have Been Deceived.

"A number of unions composed of colored men have been deceived into sending delegates. They have been led to believe they will attend a convention of union Negroes. The fact is that the convention was called by men who are not members of trade unions, or, if they are, they do not attend the unions of which they are members."

DIES OF BONFIRE BURNS.

Lodwiga Stalek, 4 years old, died at St. Elizabeth's hospital yesterday of burns suffered when her clothing was ignited as she was playing around a bonfire Saturday night. The accident occurred near her home, 2519 Corns street.

Are Good Salesmen Hard to Get??

Are your ten best men real top notchers and do your next forty seem like second raters? Do you put on prize contests? Do you drive, Drive, D R I V E, and often without success? Do you change sales managers every so often, looking for a human dynamo to run the sales department?

These are common symptoms. Part of the answer may be with the men—some of it may be product, price, or service. But most concerns find the remedy by improving the market for the goods through advertising to the public. This enables average salesmen to do a bigger, more profitable business.

It is because advertising is such an important factor in the selling system that Business is turning more and more to advertising. Our valuable book "Four Square Advertising" discusses all this and should be in the hands of every manufacturer who is considering fall and 1926 selling plans.

FRANCE RUSHES TROOPS TO QUELL SYRIAN REVOLT

Painleve Tells How 106 Were Massacred.

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

PARIS, Aug. 9.—The war ministry is rushing troops to Syria today to crush the Druse rebels and prevent the rebellion from spreading.

Two battalions of the French Foreign Legion have been sent to Beirut from Morocco and a number of tank, aviation, infantry, and machine gun units have left Marseilles.

The French garrison of 200 men in the citadel of Suedia, capital of the Druse state, still are holding out, but they are running short of water and ammunition. Gen. Sarraill, high commissioner in Syria, cannot send a relief column until reinforcements arrive.

Painleve Tells of Massacre.

Premier Painleve tonight received the first full report from Gen. Sarraill about the Druse uprising.

"The Druses started to quarrel among themselves about the independence of the country," the premier said. "Gen. Sarraill sent several small columns to maintain order and one column of 100 men was surrounded in the Druse country and massacred, only sixty escaping."

A larger column under Gen. Michaud was sent to punish them, and this column was followed by a convoy of mules and camels carrying supplies and munitions under the protection of Syrian and Malagache riflemen. The Druses waited until the convoy dropped some distance behind and then made a violent attack and drove off the guards. The officer commanding the convoy was wounded and then killed himself to avoid falling into the hands of these barbarians. The columns under Gen. Michaud, being deprived of their munitions, had to fight their way back.

"I do not know the importance of our losses, because the end of the telegram has not arrived and I do not think the Druses have attacked Suedia. The citadel of Suedia is still held and the French troops are resisting bravely."

Adult Heavy Loss of Supplies.

The French newspapers openly admit today that Gen. Michaud's column lost ten airplanes, all artillery, machine guns, supplies, camels, and mules, and the Druses hold all their country today except Suedia citadel.

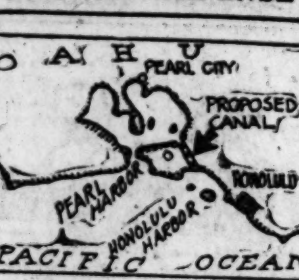

The French troops in Syria now amount to less than 5,000, not including the unreliable Syrian troops. It cost 200,000,000 francs ($10,000,000) to maintain the French army in Syria in 1924, but the average number of troops then was 30,000. Most of them now are in Morocco.

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Aug. 9.—The American aviators of the new Lafayette escadrille landed at Casablanca this morning after an uneventful voyage of seventy hours from Marseilles on the steamer Anfa. The American flyers were escorted by French aviators here to the Army club, where they will be lodged pending the arrival of Col. Sweeney's

HAWAII DEFENSE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

HONOLULU, Aug. 9.—Besides the improvement of Pearl harbor and entrance channel, permitting the free entrance of battleships, which has been urged by all visiting congressmen and naval experts, further developments were advocated today by Congressmen Fritz G. Lanham of Texas and Tom McKeown of Oklahoma, who urged a second waterway connecting Pearl harbor with Honolulu harbor and Kapaemahu basin.

This would give the navy two outlets to the sea from Pearl harbor so the fleet could not be bottled up there, which the congressmen believed to be of the greatest importance.

Congressmen Lanham and McKeown visited Schofield barracks today, declaring that funds should be provided immediately for the completion of a new hospital to replace the present building, which they branded as a firetrap. They also urged the replacement of the obsolete barracks.

squadron, which is flying to North Africa from France. The Americans must undergo several days of intensive training at the local flying field so as to become accustomed to the atmospheric conditions in Morocco.

Rebels Leave Dead on Field.

EL ARAISH, Spanish Morocco, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Advices received here from the French zone of operations say a French column under command of Col. Freydenburg enveloped the enemy tribesmen at Maciso Agene, killing many and compelling the others to take to flight. The road at Zetuna has been cleared of rebels.

In the central sector, movement of French columns from Kelaa, Seles, Fes El Ball has been effected, but with fierce resistance by the tribesmen. In the fighting the rebels left sixty dead, and nine prisoners were taken, together with many rifles.

It is reported that Abd-el Krim, the rebel leader, is engaged in a battle with the Cananion tribes north of Taza.

CHILE'S CHAINS ON TACNA-ARICA IRK PERUVIANS

BY C. N. GRIFFIS.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 9.—The situation developing in Tacna and Arica, according to the viewpoint of Peru, has sifted down concretely to the question of guarantees and the free movement of Peruvians and Peruvian sympathizers throughout the disputed provinces.

The inability of Col. Ordonez, chief of the boundary survey, to attend the meeting at Tacna yesterday owing to the refusal of the Chilean gendarmes to allow him to land is regarded as an incident of paramount importance in leading articles in all the Lima newspapers.

It is pointed out here today that the position of the Peruvian transport, Ucayali, anchored in Arica, is equivalent to that of an interned steamer in a hostile port during war.

Travelers Must Have Permits.

A Chilean governmental decree published in the newspaper El Pacifico of Tacna and republished here by La Prensa, confines all movements between any towns, villages, or districts of Tacna and Arica to certain clearly defined and specified roads. Travelers over such roads must have verified, registered police permits and any attempt to cross fields or otherwise evade compliance with the provisions of these regulations will be punished under the full penalties of military law.

Travelers passing between even the smallest villages must secure numbered identification cards to be delivered to the military or gendarmes headquarters in the next village.

Editorials in the Lima newspapers point out that an iron clad control is maintained by the Chileans over every inch of territory, inspiring fear of death in all the inhabitants. While expressing confidence in the good intentions of the Pershing mission, they express doubt as to Gen. Pershing's power to force a relaxation in the Chilean restrictions.

The Peruvian line steamer Mantaro, sister of the ship Ucayali, is sailing for Arica Monday, carrying confidential dispatches, as all direct cable, telegraph, and wireless communications pass through the territory controlled by the Chileans, and are presumably under the latter's censorship.

The newspapers also point out editorially here that virtually all foreign correspondents covering the Tacna-Arica developments are lodged either aboard the Rochester or in quarters ashore, provided by Chile.

Believes Pershing Will Succeed.

Clemente Palma, son of Ricardo Palma, famous author, writing in the weekly publication Variedades, takes the position, however, that all preliminary discussions and guarantees will be cleared up by Gen. Pershing, but that the delegations will encounter the most serious points at issue when voting qualifications, authenticity of parish birth registers, census figures, and other pertinent documents come up for discussion.

WHAT'S TO BECOME OF THE DRAINAGE CANAL?

It is now 25 years since the main channel of the drainage canal was put into service. The canal was built for two purposes. It was to carry off the city's sewage and it was to furnish the connecting link between the Great Lakes and the Illinois river system.

Twenty-five years, as time is measured in this community, is a long time. It would seem reasonable to expect that whatever ends the canal was built to meet, it would now be accomplishing. Unfortunately this is not so. The canal has done its part in guarding health at the nation's center, but its other function, the furnishing of a vital waterway for commerce, has been neglected.

Through the sloth of the nation and the state, the enterprise of Chicago has been neglected for a quarter of a century.

Within a few years more the canal will no longer be of the first importance in sewage disposal. The government has ordered a reduction in the flow of water from Lake Michigan to less than one-half of the volume the canal was built to carry and sewage must, in consequence, be treated in great reduction plants now authorized and in part under construction. The lessening of the flow will require the construction of a few works in addition to those originally contemplated to maintain an adequate depth for barges in the Illinois river; but the engineering problems so far as the waterway is concerned are by no means difficult and the consequences of the federal order will not be fatal.

The passing of twenty-five years enabled many to forget the telling arguments in favor of the use of the canal for freightage. It will give Chicago and Illinois cheaper rates to the lower Mississippi valley and thence to Latin America. Few river routes are naturally so advantageous; locks will be required only at Joliet, Channahon, Marseilles, and Ottawa, and one of them, that at Marseilles, is already well advanced. The Illinois river is notable for the straightness of its course, which will favor ease of navigation as well as speed. Finally, the construction of the canal was the chief engineering problem on the Illinois waterway. The rest is easy, and has been for a quarter of a century.

The building of sewage plants means the end of the canal's usefulness for drainage. The lessening of the flow of water means a corresponding decrease in the amount of electrical energy produced at its dam sites. The canal eventually will be of small use to the community or the country unless it is developed as the waterway for which it was originally intended.

RAVINIA PARK.

A number of things go into Chicago's reputation. One is the homicide record. In our domestic prophylaxis we have to get it spread about that there is a murder a day and a hanging or two a year. More people know the city has the stockyards than know it has the Art Institute, the Field Museum, the Chicago orchestra, one of the world's finest boulevards, and some of its finest architecture.

Chicago is best known for its killings, of beasts for food and of people for fun, revenge, or profit. Any reputation which can offset some of this is good for the metropolitan district. It has for one thing Ravinia park, in Lake county geographically, but a Chicago institution given to the metropolitan area by the enthusiasm and ability of a Chicago citizen, Louis Eckstein.

He is confining the Chicago reputation for violence with a reputation for music, for an institution in which an old and cultured civilization would take the greatest pride. It is opera production with the world's great singers and one of the world's great orchestras made a summer attraction under the white oaks with the moonlight and locusts as additional lighting and orchestral effects. This is a part of the reputation which we know is bound in the end to prevail for the Chicago district. It is not thinkable that the activities of the worst element of the population will long be the inventory of the city's worth. There is too much enthusiasm and vitality in the other direction.

ITALY UNDER THE DICTATOR.

Former Premier Orlando has given his resignation from the Italian chamber of deputies to Casarano, president of the chamber, in protest against the Fascist control of the recent Palermo elections by intimidation and against the continuance of absolutism under Mussolini. He also will exile himself for the time and go to France.

He may believe that he can do more for the restoration of constitutional government by confessing despair of the situation than by remaining in the leadership of the opposition and continuing the contest against dictatorship.

Orlando and the parliamentary group opposed to Mussolini had made a failure of the government before the dictator appeared. That is why he did appear and if it had not been Mussolini with Fascism it would have been a communist dictator with the Reds.

When parliamentary government breaks down the man on horseback will come with his following. It has happened several times in modern France. Mussolini saved Italy from the Reds, which Orlando and his associates could not do. Now he is giving the country a dictatorship less desirable than a competent constitutional government but infinitely to be preferred to the dictatorship of communism.

Mussolini has abrogated the rights of parliament, virtually deposed the king, suspended political liberties, rights of press and speech and suffrage. In doing so his followers have used terrorism and violence. The police are subservient. The leaders and spokesmen of the opposition are not physically safe and their property is not protected.

That does not furnish durable government, but it is the kind of government a nation will get if its constitutional forms fall to pieces in weakness. It could happen here if our political sense degenerated and our branches of government ceased to work in emergency.

THE U. S. INVITED TO GET BACK IN THE FIRE.

Lloyd George in North Wales appealed to the American visitors to the Welsh league of nations union congress to use their influence that America should not abandon Europe. "Don't ring down the fire curtain so that the flames should not consume you," he urged, and said that what happened in the recent war was nothing to what would happen if there was another one.

The present serious troubles of Europe are largely in Africa and Asia. Europeans outside of Europe are fighting. The French and the Spanish are fighting in Morocco. The French are fighting in Syria. The British have troubles in India, Egypt, and China. The Italians want a chance to fight in Africa.

Most of these troubles and battles are where the European has gone to look for them. They involve the rights of natives to have more to say in their own lands.

In Europe itself the Poles have expelled German householders and the Germans have expelled Polish householders. The battle states are restless, wanting to keep what they have and think threatened or to get back what some other nation took away from them.

We are sure that the United States did not excite any of these disturbances and we are quite sure that all of them would be progressing as they are if the government of the United States had tried to prevent them and now tried to stop them. They arise out of the will and desire of Europe.

We know that when a group of Europeans ask the United States to adhere to anything the request is that the United States adhere to a particular element in a controversy. Europe may make the plea of a drug addict. It has the habit and it can't stop.

Don't ring down the fire curtain? That's what the curtain is for. Our suggestion would be that Europe get away from the gasoline and put away its matches.

A GRACIOUS TRIBUTE.

The honors paid the late Ambassador Edgar Bancroft by the Japanese authorities and people are not only gratifying to his many friends and fellow citizens as a tribute to him but we trust may be accepted as an indication of the good will which ought to exist between two great nations. The courtesy of the Japanese is proverbial, but it would be ungracious as well as mistaken, we are sure, to interpret these honors as a mere official formality.

As a sincere gesture of good will they are especially welcome in view of the strain put upon the traditional amity of Japanese-American relations by the immigration question. And we trust it is proof that Japanese resentment over an untoward diplomatic incident has abated and that Japanese opinion has reached the conclusion that the American attitude toward Japan is not hostile.

We cannot alter our exclusion policy in its essentials, but apart from that there is no disposition in the United States to quarrel and every disposition to be friends. We realize that our well meant and quite innocuous efforts to help at the time of the earthquake were in some quarters misunderstood. The incident disclosed the fact that in Japan there is less confidence in our sincerity and good will than there ought to be, and doubtless we are not without responsibility for that fact. But neither Japanese super-sensitiveness, nor our defects in fact should be allowed to obscure the substantial reasons for friendly relations between the two countries. We in America feel that our nation has given the Japanese people repeated, indubitable proofs of good will, and while we cannot give away on the issue of our right to complete control over immigration, we have every disposition to cultivate unbroken relations of mutual respect and cooperation.

Editorial of the Day

THE SMALL TOWN.
(Ogle County Reporter.)

There never was a time when the small town, from a commercial standpoint, was being weighed in the balance as in the present era, and this means right now. There never was a time when the small town of purpose in behalf of the survival of the small town and the impulse of cooperation, coordination and fraternal and good will cohesion on the part of commercial factors of any small town were of more vital moment than right now.

Enthusiasm for perfected highways, for traffic arteries connecting large population centers, is of natural inspiration. Concrete roads represent developed enterprise in keeping with the times, but the establishing of these perfected roads means diversion of business to the larger towns.

The small town if its commercial factors are alive and alert to their peril is face to face with a struggle for veritable existence. If such fight is to be waged with any hope of ultimate success, it should engage an allied, harmonious effort on the part of those most vitally concerned—the merchants and business men of the town.

No town can prosper without unanimity of purpose. No town can hope to survive in the face of present and developing conditions with the commercial factors of that town divided into factions and warring interne-cine warfare against each other. No town can expect to exist with warring elements seeking to drive each other out of business and out of town.

No town was ever built on a foundation policy of disintegration. No sound doctrine of enterprise promotion was ever conceived on the theory of destroying or driving away individual factors in the achievement of community prosperity.

Towns that succeed and expand in population and in enterprise possess business men that seek to attract and to retain other enterprising factors, not to hamper and drive them away. The old adage "live and let live" is not defined on a basis of prices. It is meant to imply treatment of your neighbor of a sort calculated to permit him to live and to contribute to the attainment of your livelihood.

A town is precisely what its people choose to make it and commercially it is just what its commercial factors choose to make it.

There may be certain gratification of ulterior inclination in placing obstacles in the way of individual ambition and achievement. But community prosperity is not built on the foundation of malice and hatred. And the future prosperity of the small town is never subject to the hazard that conditions it is at the present time.

How to Keep Well.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, of matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations, and where a stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed, Dr. Evans will not make a diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases. ACIDOSIS.
In recent years mothers have learned to dread acidosis. It affects children, causing them to have fever, to vomit, to become unconscious, to die, to be alarmingly sick. Many die from it. Before the days of acidosis these children were said to have convulsions, to be infected with worms, to be having malaria—a number of names were used and, in consequence, there were many treatments.

Adopting the diagnosis "acidosis" served at least one good purpose. It got rid of a multitude of wrong diagnoses and spared the children a lot of quinine and worm medicine. And now the outside of acidosis is undergoing change. The first theory was that the development of acids in the body used up some of the surplus alkali, and decreased the alkali reserve. This theory led to the soda treatment of acidosis. This treatment is still used, but not so extensively as formerly.

There are men who even think the soda treatment of acidosis does harm. The newer theory is that the acids in acidosis are not simple ones, but are organic compounds, high in the chemical scale. This theory is that the child is intoxicated with a something similar to chloroform, ether, or some other compound on that chemical plane.

There is a condition known as cyclical vomiting which is either acidosis or which is a brother to it, and which affects children especially. There are those who think cyclic vomiting and acidosis are due or are sometimes due to disturbance of sugar metabolism.

In two cases reported by Dr. Green, children were in very serious condition and nothing helped them very much until they were given glucose and insulin simultaneously. The insulin was the same stuff given for diabetes and it was given in the same way. Glucose, given by the usual methods, did not seem to help, but when insulin was given simultaneously the story was different.

In the discussion it developed that mild cases of cyclic vomiting required no treatment other than the giving of orange juice by mouth. Some cases were too severe to be cured by such a simple procedure. The next grade of severity calls for glucose or corn syrup, either by mouth or by rectum.

Mrs. E. M. A. writes: I would like to take a trip to California, but have a baby three months old. Would it be harmful to the baby to take it on this trip during August?

Don't go. REPLY.
In all probability the same plan should be followed in acidosis. Mild cases need no treatment.

RIGHTS OF WRATH.
Chicago, Aug. 4.—(To the Legal Friend of the People.)—I suppose I am only one among thousands whose blood is still in the boiling stage about the Drake hotel robbery and other dastardly crimes of crime perpetrated in our city lately.

I feel convinced that the fault of the crime commission of the city does not lie with the police. What I want to know is not what is going to be done but what can be done.

AS AND B'S MONEY.
Chicago, Aug. 4.—(To the Legal Friend of the People.)—If A wills money to B, B dies before A, will the money be given to B to go to B's heirs? This is, of course, in the event the will was never changed.

DRAWING UP A WILL.
Chicago, Aug. 5.—(To the Legal Friend of the People.)—Is it necessary to have a will drawn up by a lawyer in order to have it legal? If not, what constitutes a legal will?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE ROAD TO MOTHERLAND.
I used to think, as I held you the while, That your small life was molded all for me. I watched for you to waken just to see Your baby smile.

Now I am thinking how the years have sped Since I felt your warm mouth against my breast, Where, to my crooning, sleepily you'd rest Your baby head.

Ah, some day when Life offers you your choice Of many things and places far and near, Perhaps you'll choose the path down which you hear A baby's voice.

And if you take the road to Motherland, With each new day a mystery shall unfold Before your wondering eyes, because you hold A baby's hand.

Grace B. Starbuck.

AUGUST 10 MONDAY

MOB attacked the Tulleries, French Revolution begun, 1792. Henrietta Marie, queen of Charles I, died 1669. Ashton Stevens, dramatist, born (pretty near) 1872. (Amphora) Ash sons born the next day, August 11, in San Francisco, Cal. Get presents ready to day. Missouri admitted as a State into the Union, 1820. Corn growing taller and taller. The voice of the chickadee is heard in the land. What a nice old world.

A. B. C. D. Wodehouse!
R. H. L.: So I see to her, "Speaking of the Line, Pat, what do you think of all this fuss about Wodehouse?" And she sees, she sees, "I think they ought to close all them dumps right up; they're a disgrace to a civilized community." Oh, I just had to. Maybe I'd better plead insanity.

Your Eyesight Is Defective.
R. H. L.: Hey! Hey! Ha, ha! I saw two of 'em. Just two of 'em. Two what? Why I saw two of 'em without crenetone caps. Ho! Ho! Ho!

CHARLEY DAWES' interview given to the perspiring reporters in Omaha was as follows (turn rule and quote): "It's too damned hot. The remark is not original, it is not constructive, it has no great and shining beauty, but the very fact that Charley Dawes said it it was considered worthy of telegraph tolls to the remotest corners of our great country, to England and the continent, proves that Charley has got the vice-presidential fix ground under his heel, screaming for help."

She Saw Us Bury the Body.
Either Dona Meara is a friendly relative, or she, him, or it owes you some money. . . . What is it else?
THE GREEN GODDESS.

Yes, Indeed, It Saves Time Writing Was.
R. H. L.: Please accept a compliment from a reader of your column. It is very commendable that you make such a slight mistake as saying none was instead of some were, such a storm of protest should arise. That shows your slips are few and far between. Every one makes mistakes and you probably have to write very fast at times.

WHY MOCK at Daddy Browning, who couldn't tell whether a flapper was sixteen years old or twenty-one. Hardly any man nowadays can tell whether they're fourteen or forty.

THE DESERT ISLAND.
R. H. L.: Now, as ever, it is the splendor of the unattainable that attracts and untold beauty abounds in the impossible. That is why the idea of a D. I. excursion becomes an enchanting fantasy of rare color and charm. That is why, too, some of our great country, to England and the continent, proves that Charley has got the vice-presidential fix ground under his heel, screaming for help."

PROF. CHARLES GOODPASTER'S Chicago Bible will be sent to India. If they read the newspapers in India, they may retaliate by sending us the King James one.

What Do You Call a Hog? Algernon?
REPLY.
When telling about calling hogs out in Iowa, I neglected to mention that visitors to the farm should not say, "Piggy! Piggy! Piggy!" because it embarrasses a hog to be called such a silly name and he doesn't like it at all.

Sic 'Em, Henry!
R. H. L.: I learned it from Henry Barrett Chamberlin's guide book for perspiring and likker drinking reporters that did they wish to play in the broad line of the late lamented Record-Herald they had better say, "NONE WAS." And he still has something to do around Chicago with crimes again English. Sic him on 'em, Dick, sic him on 'em! If they won't believe you, tell 'em to ask him. He'll tell 'em.

DADDY BROWNING cannot adopt Mary Louise Spink. From what we have read of the case we think Mary seems to have adopted Daddy Browning.

TO COLORADO PETE.
To tramp the plain or climb the mountain side,
To rest beneath the hedge or breast the gale,
To watch the glory of the setting sun
Dim as the stars come creeping, cold and pale.

To follow little roads that lead to laughter,
To rest beside a merry mountain stream,
To worship in the dim aisles of the forest,
Beneath the noonday shade to lie and dream.

With such a man as pilot and as comrade
Were worth all else that life can offer me;
The dreamer owns the big, round world we live in,
The plodders toil and moil for such as he.

Oh, Misogynist, Your Nose Is Bleeding!
R. H. L.: Please tell Misogynist that the modern man is also to have his nose bleed. The modern man understands words of one syllable only.

THERE SEEMS to be a good deal of talk in Illinois about adding murder to the penal code.

Why, Isn't That the Right Answer?
R. H. L.: Maybe you have heard this one: A traffic cop stopped a man for running the lights and asked him if he knew the meaning of the green light. The answer was correct. He then asked what the amber lights meant. "Yes," said the man, "it means go like hell to beat the red."

KLAN INITIATION AND FIERY CROSS SEEN BY THROG

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—All Washington, it seemed, as well as the inhabitants of the contiguous sections of Maryland and Virginia, traveled by motor, street car, and foot to witness an initiation ceremony of the Ku Klux Klan and the burning of a huge cross erected on the horse show grounds near Arlington.

dreeds of soldiers pressed into service from Fort Myer in the emergency. So great was the stream of humanity that poured across the highway bridge over the Potomac, there to converge with other small-like lanes of traffic converging from all directions on the Virginia side, that thousands of klansmen and their families never reached the grounds at all.

Cross Visible Afar.
It was about 9 o'clock when the brand was applied to the foot of the cross. The flames traveled quickly up the oil soaked upright, but it was some minutes before the arms caught the blaze and the full figure of the cross flamed against an inky sky, from which bolts of heat lightning flashed now and then.

From the heights of the city the cross was plainly visible and to the thousands who lined the sea wall on the Washington side of the river, but from our Georgetown way it was barely visible among the glaring lights of an amusement park at the river edge on the Virginia side.

day remained over until today to assist the Virginia and District of Columbia klans in staging the initiation ceremony. About 4 o'clock it looked as if another thunderstorm would again necessitate a postponement, but the rain ceased suddenly.

Negro Churches Well Attended.
A few Negroes were seen in the crowds which went to the river to watch the burning cross, but none crossed the river. On the other hand, a number of them were seen crossing the bridge into Washington from the Virginia side as the ceremonies were about to begin. It was said that colored churches here never experienced such good attendance on a summer Sunday night.

No disorder marked the second day of Klan festivities. Only a few members of the order wore their robes on the streets today. In the afternoon a wreath was placed by the Cincinnati Klan on the tomb of the unknown soldier. A wreath of red roses also was placed on the grave of William Jennings Bryan, but there was nothing to indicate its donor.

by Dr. A. H. Guldberg of Columbus, O., and several others made speeches. At the conclusion an invitation was issued to those in the audience to join the order and about 200 signed application blanks.

Warden's Son Fails Escape of 7 Convicts at Chester
Chester, Ill., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Seven prisoners attempted to escape from the southern Illinois penitentiary today. They took the gate guard's keys from him and bound him to a post. A heavy fog concealed their movements from other guards. An attempt to steal Warden Green's private car was foiled by the convict chauffeur and the warden's son, who forced them back to cells at the point of a gun. The chauffeur was seriously beaten before young Green appeared.

122D ARTILLERY BEGINS ITS MARCH TO CAMP GRANT

The 122d Field Artillery was on the march yesterday, enroute to Camp Grant. It was taking the trip by easy stages, expecting to reach the camp Thursday afternoon.

At 7:15 o'clock the bugle sounded and out onto Chicago avenue the caissons went rolling along.

FALL IN STREET FATAL.
Believed to have fallen during an attempt to get home while intoxicated, Marcone Bobak, 51, died yesterday at the county hospital of a fractured skull. He was found at 10th street and Ashland boulevard. He lived at 1814 West 37th street.

New Coats, Gowns and Suits Flare Confidently

The Coat of black kasha pictured first accepts with enthusiasm the swing of the autumn mode by its novel fanlike detail of the front and its side fullness. The yoke shoulder line is new and the civet cat fur on sides and collar.

The Suit holds subtly to the flare silhouette by banding the long-sleeved satin gown with mole and using the same soft fur at each side of the coat. The taupe of the new piled wool, of the satin and of the mole is enhanced with bands of Chinese red, gold and silver braid.

The Gown but accents its slenderness by the graceful flare of a flying panel at the back of the skirt. Of lustrous mirror crepe in black, cuckoo, sylphail or crow blue, this model has a contrasting vest and tie of beige or flesh. $85.

Elmer Finds Offerings of Ether Dull

So He Takes Time to Remember Friends.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

There was nothing special discovered yesterday afternoon or evening, so we utilize the occasion to remember some of our old friends.

First, our new friends, the Lincoln park band concert through W-G-N, 3 p.m. to 5 o'clock. That yesterday's concert by the Davis band is immortal in today's article, for there is a different band every Sunday. The thought here is the afternoon holiday spirit of open air, the out of door picture sequences that seem to be picked up by the microphone and carried bodily along with the incoming musical tones. Altogether this is undoubtedly one of the most universally welcome of the more recent radio-cast innovations in Chicago.

Another broadcast that strikes a different chord and one in a field all by itself is the Chicago Gospel tabernacle broadcast through WHI. Here also is a band concert program, followed by a program by a large choir. But more than this in the writer's mind is the incidental running remarks, side remarks, witticisms and psychological and philosophical comments by Paul Eder. The writer's dial rarely runs upon this broadcast but that there is something doing that vividly fits the above description. The comments I hear everywhere lead me to believe that this broadcast is generally appreciated.

For an hour or so after 7:30 the writer settled down to alternately listening to WBBH and WMBH, the Orpheus orchestra in particular at the former and the Trianon ensemble in particular at the latter.

The Trianon ensemble has been turned to consistently furnish high class music presented in a most admirable manner and apparently without any attempt to merely tickle popular fancy. The Orpheus orchestra, in spite of its dominating saxophone tones, attracts and holds one's interest because they are always springing something new on us, and we never know when these stunts are going to occur.

Perhaps WQJ should be included here, because the vocal and instrumental soloists which this station features on Sundays are always first class, but the writer feels that the musical programs are marred by a needless and persistent caricature of our good word "Chicago."

The writer has said so much about the Drake concert ensemble at W-G-N and its consistently perfect musical virtues that nothing further need be said here, except that an accidental turn to this station at 9:45 found this orchestra playing a piece that compelled instant admiration and worthy place in our musical vocabulary, and which turned out to be a work of Liszt with the title "Andante."

With that thought we close, with regrets and respect for all the other entertainers yesterday.

Let the Pittsburgh Plus Decision Make Money For You

WITH the abolishment of "Pittsburgh Plus," (the elimination of the addition of the cost of freight on steel from Pittsburgh to destination, regardless of where the steel is refined), it will be necessary for the eastern steel mills to locate in this territory in order to meet competition. This industrial growth means the employing of thousands and thousands of working people. These employees must be housed, clothed, fed. As a result of this increased demand for home sites and for business property, prices will advance within a short time.

Learn the facts before it is too late

Chicago could properly be termed the fastest growing city in the world. To the real estate investor, the important feature of this growth is the fact that its tendency is to move south. The Calumet District, located directly south of the city, is receiving the benefit of this expansion. The Ford Automobile plant, Jones-Laughlin Steel Company, Sherwin-Williams Paint Company and nearly 300 other industries almost as large, now located in the Calumet District, have felt this growth to such an extent that it has become necessary for them to seek better and larger transportation facilities.

As a result of this the Calumet Harbor, which will be the greatest inland harbor in the world, is being built.

As you can readily see from the above map, our properties are so located as to prove the logical place for a home or for a business venture. Factories, steel mills, industries of all kinds, railroads and shipping facilities are within a reasonably short distance. If you want to know more about this community of possibilities, clip and mail the coupon below and we will send you our beautifully illustrated booklet on the Calumet District, "The Greatest Thing in Industry."

Official Conference.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—The first formal conference between the world war foreign debt commission and the Belgian debt mission will take place at the treasury department tomorrow morning.

It can be stated authoritatively that the Belgians "mean business" and that they have come with the firm intention of reaching a final agreement with this government in regard to the $480,000,000 debt; and American officials have a similar optimistic feeling.

While it is uncertain how long the negotiations will take, it is not believed they will last more than two weeks.

Third Largest of Debts.
In due the Belgian debt to the United States ranks third among the war time obligations. That of France is the largest, totaling with the latest interest, $4,210,556,946; while that of Italy is $2,138,543,852, and that of Belgium, $480,508,983.

Of the Belgian debt proper $171,800,000 was borrowed during the war, while $308,000,000 was loaned after the armistice for reconstruction and relief purposes. Whether Belgium will attempt to distinguish between these two classes of debts in the pending negotiations is not certain, although it is not believed she will suggest that payment of her actual war debt be made dependent on the receipt of reparations from Germany, this government some time ago having frowned on unofficial intimations to that effect. The Belgian government itself never made such a claim.

May Ask Brief Moratorium.
As cash payments from Germany under the reparations plan do not start until 1927, it is probable Belgium will ask for a brief moratorium, possibly five to ten years, before making any payments. This would give Belgium a "trading point" even if it did not obtain such concession. The American commission, it is pointed out, must take into consideration what form of agreement congress would approve, and there is some doubt as to whether a moratorium would be acceptable. It seems certain, however, that the rate of interest during the initial years would be low and that the payments of the first few years also might be made small.

In considering Belgium's "capacity to pay" both her present and her future ability will be taken into account.

NARCISSUS BAN STIRS CAPITAL WAR ON BUREAU

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—What is described as the battle of the narcissus versus the onion is on. The center of attack is the federal horticultural board of the department of agriculture, which three years ago entered a decree that after Jan. 1, 1926, no more narcissus bulbs may be imported into this country except for propagating and scientific purposes. Opponents of the embargo have organized what they term a campaign against bureaucracy. They are flooding the Secretary of Agriculture Jardine with protests and propose to demand a congressional investigation.

A brief prepared for presentation to President Coolidge, the cabinet, and members of congress declares that the horticultural board's exclusion policy is contrary to the spirit of the law, unscientific, injurious to horticulture, and likely to bring on a big international trade war.

"The board bases its action upon the claim that narcissus bulbs are likely to bring over from Europe certain insects, in particular eel worms and narcissus flies which, it is feared, might attack field crops, especially onions," says a statement issued today.

HARVARD 'A' HAS WON THE WEST, EVANS LEARNS

Sticks Have Disappeared, He Discovers.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—One notable effect of the rural renaissance is linguistics. Automobiles and hard roads, travel and contact, the great growth of the colleges, and the suburbanizing of the countryside have registered a change in everyday speech. The extra "a" is vanishing and the Harvard "a" is common.

The western farmer has put balloon tires on flat vowels. They no longer skid when he speaks of calves and grass. Only a few years back the comedians used to knock them dead with sure-fire cracks about "the Saturday night bawls at hawf pawt nite."

Call It "Bath" Now.

From Wichita, Kas., to Winnebago, Minn., one hears ruralites calling it "bath." Not quite so broad as in New England, but still carrying several pounds more pressure than when the word skidded along as "bath."

Throughout the grain belt the beauty parlor is as much in evidence as in Chicago and New York. Nobody talks of bobbed hair any more.

Massages and Manicures.

The gay young blades in the small cities and hamlets think nothing of blowing $1.50 to get their faces massaged and their hair manicured.

The traveler can take almost any string of towns at random—like Abilene and Manhattan, Kas.; York, Neb.; Red Oak, Ia.; La Crosse, Wis.—and the vagrant eye discovers the display is not far different from that on the Link Bridge in Chicago.

Also, the older generation has shaved the clock back. The farmer's wife has lost the worn and jaded look, machinery has cut down the drudgery, life has become fuller. The vanity case and the compact, the lip stick, and the barber, silk stockings and modern dresses have toned up the landscape.

POVERTY ACUTE IN IRELAND, DUE TO JOB SHORTAGE

DUBLIN, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Replying to a suggestion that an appeal be made for funds to relieve the alleged famine conditions in Clonmel, the mayor of Clonmel said the situation had improved.

The statement on Saturday that two children had died of starvation in Clonmel has not been verified. The existence of acute poverty there and in several other Irish towns, due to unemployment, is admitted, however.

LEWIS SMASHES PEACE HOPE IN MINE DEADLOCK

Blocks Parley Unless Operators Yield.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—Hopes for an early resumption of the anthracite wage parleys were dashed today by the reply of President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America to the recent letter of Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the anthracite operators' conference, who declared that despite breaking off of relations he was hopeful "that means will be found to compose the differences between us."

Mr. Lewis, in his reply, indicated that only arbitration by the operators of their opposition to wage increases and the check-off would bring the miners into conference again. The miners' chief rejected Mr. Warriner's suggestion on arbitration.

Hits Operators' Tactics.

Challenged to justify his earlier statement that the miners opposed arbitration because of the anthracite operators' policy "of keeping close to an arbitrator," Mr. Lewis said he re-ferred to "the arbitration proceeding of some years ago when the final decision of the arbitrator was changed between twilight and dawn."

In 1920, when miners expected a wage increase of 27 per cent from President Wilson's arbitration, they received 17 per cent, Mr. Lewis said.

"No Arbitration, Thanks."

"We really do not care to arbitrate," he said. "Thanks for the offer. We know that you think the medicine would be good for us, but frankly, we have little faith in your diagnosis. It will be long before we recover completely from your previous arbitration treatment."

Prospect of a strike of 155,000 mine workers on expiration of the present agreement on Aug. 31 was heightened by the Lewis letter.

OLDFIELD PLANS 'CAMPAIGN TOUR' OF 12 STATES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—[Special.]—A spellbinding program which will carry him into twelve states in the middle and far west has been arranged by Representative William A. Oldfield (Dem., Ark.), chairman of the Democratic national congressional committee, who will leave Washington on a month's trip on Aug. 15.

States to be visited will include Wisconsin, Ohio, Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Utah, Colorado, Idaho, California, Oregon, and Washington.

"Democratic leaders in all of these states have written me that the west is ripe for a great Democratic movement," Mr. Oldfield said today. "They tell me that the western farmers are disgusted with this administration, with its protective tariff which protects only the rich, with its untold promises of agricultural and general prosperity, with its false claims of economy and its flat declaration to the farmers to work out their own salvation. A Democratic congress would correct these evils. This is the fact I am going to drive home."

GARY COPS SEIZE 3 MEN, LOAD OF BOOZE, IN BATTLE

Gary, Ind., police shot it out with three men in an automobile loaded with booze yesterday morning. They finally captured the men after a wild chase through Gary streets. The prisoners are: James Dwyer, alias Buck, a pal of the late Jimmie Vinci, 2811 Princeton avenue; John Buckner of Burnham, and William Healy, 233 West 76th street.

The automobile in which they were hauling liquor had been stolen from Lawrence Jackson, 4900 North St. Louis avenue. This brought on an additional charge of violating the Dyer act, a federal law concerning the taking of a stolen automobile from one state to another.

Mayor John P. Jaranowski of Calumet City yesterday ordered the police to make that town as dry as the Sahara. It is said to have been an oasis for residents of northern Indiana since the Wright law went into effect. A conference of the mayor with federal officials in Chicago is said to have caused the order.

AUTO THIEVES ESCAPE POLICE BY FANCY TRICK

Sgt. Pat Murphy and his detective bureau squad missed the capture of several thieves yesterday because of a fancy bit of maneuvering on the part of the thieves.

The policemen, in a high-powered automobile westbound in North avenue, saw at Leanington street a truck eastbound and conveyed by men in another automobile. They saw the name "Honey" on the truck and at once recalled that a truck of that firm had been stolen. They turned about and gave chase. Those in the other machine were quickly aware they were being pursued.

Into an alley the convoy went and the truck swung it around so that it blocked the alley. Then he boarded the other automobile and the oncoming police could do nothing but shoot, back up and go around the block, to resume the chase.

SCOPES JUDGE LAUDS BRYAN, SCORES DARROW

Tells Audience Here He Is Fundamentalist.

Thomas Scopes did or did not teach evolution contrary to the state law.

Darrow "Agnostic Counsel."

Of his decisions in the Scopes case he says: "I only pray to God as I stand before you that I decided them right."

He speaks constantly of Clarence Darrow as "agnostic counsel." Once he forgets himself and says Mr. Darrow, and aside apologies: "I didn't mean to say that." Darrow had the "agnostic counsel" ruled out of the record at the trial.

Always Believed in Prayer.

"Ever since I have been a judge," he continues, "I have made it a practice, a custom, to open court with prayer. I started to do it in the Scopes case and agnostic counsel says: 'You can't.'"

"And I said back to him: 'I don't believe prayer will hurt anybody. I am constantly guided by it both in and out of the court. I overrule your objection.'"

As to his belief in fundamentalism: "What could God do? God created the land and the sea and the sun and the air and the fishes and the fowls and all things. And I don't believe it when they try to tell me that if He wanted to create a man, the farthest He could go was to create a little bit of protoplasm and put it in the bottom of the sea, and that he would have to depend upon Nature for the rest."

"I don't believe Mr. Bryan believed, or that you believe—and I know I don't believe that God made a monkey, a contemptible, mean animal and said to Nature, 'Here, make a perfect man out of it—I ain't able to do it.'"

And he pulled up his pants triumphantly, as his audience cheered him wildly in agreement.

FOUND DEAD IN STREET.

Charles Lasso, 2777 North Maplewood avenue, was found dead in the street near his home yesterday. Police believe he drank too much bad whiskey.

START MOVEMENT FOR MEMORIAL TO LATE COMMONER

Plans for a nation-wide movement for the erection of a memorial to William Jennings Bryan at Cleveland, Fla., were announced here yesterday by Miss Dionesa Bryan Evans, god-daughter of the late Commoner and daughter of D. H. Evans of Tracy, Minn., prominent political economist.

Funds for the erection of the memorial will be supplied by dime contributions from children of the Sunday and public schools of the country. Miss Evans said Charles F. Daly, president of the Liberty National Bank of New York had promised the services of that institution as custodian of the funds.

A triangular site in the heart of Cleveland has been donated for the monument.

Miss Evans' idea of the monument embraces a heroic statue of Bryan.

Pen said "yes"; bargained for fame—at any price. . . . What finally happened, after the weirdest of experiences, will astound you. Pen herself shrunk back in horror, shuddering in every fibre, when payment was asked. . . . It's a startling story. Never, you will agree, was a girl more craftily ensnared, and held helpless in the meshes of a plot without parallel for its treachery, its downright devilry.

The BOBCAT

BY HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS.
Mr. Tim Burke, real estate operator, known as a land pirate, discharges one of his lieutenants, Pol Gaudier, because he is irritated by the latter's sleekness of appearance and nonchalant manner. Pol learns that his ex-employer is a piece of Long Island property owned by Prof. Husted, and that another land shark, Michael Cadriana, is after the same land. Cadriana lives on the shore of Long Island sound with his stepdaughter, Veronica. His wife is across the bar from that of Prof. Husted. The old professor lives like a hermit, and Veronica is his only visitor. Noticing a sleek animal opposite the house, Veronica suggests to her stepfather that Pol Gaudier, posing as an itinerant poet and artist, is invited to dine with the Cadrianas, and through Veronica meets Prof. Husted. While calling on the professor Pol's boat is cut adrift. He regains it, but the next night an attempt is made to sink it. Prof. Husted invites Pol to stay at his house. Pol accepts, but later goes back to his boat, as he feels his interest in the professor's affairs has worried the old man. Pol calls on Cadriana while Veronica is out and reveals himself as an enemy. Cadriana attacks him, but Pol beats him off. That night Veronica goes to Prof. Husted's house in spite of a warning from Pol to stay away. When Veronica refuses to leave, Pol tells her to expect Cadriana to make an attack on him that night. While they are talking Cadriana arrives, and Veronica hides in the hall.

INSTALLMENT XXXVII

Cadriana came in after Pol. He stood at the corner of the table, hands in his side pockets, with the faunlets removed. The face that he turned to Pol was grim and a little white.

"Where is the professor?"

"Upstairs in his bed and plunged in oblivion from an opiate prescribed for him by the doctor. You need not be afraid of disturbing him, Mr. Cadriana. My call will be brief. I am glad to find you alone. This afternoon you called me robber and assassin. I have come to ask on what grounds you did so."

"Because you are both. The charge of robber is on so many counts that it is scarcely worth while to detail them. You robbed my father of his woods."

"You are both. The charge of robber is on so many counts that it is scarcely worth while to detail them. You robbed my father of his woods."

GOSH, I FEEL SORRY FOR JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER AND HENRY FORD - JUST THINK THE POOR LADS HAVE TO SIT IN A WARM STUFFY OFFICE COUNTING MONEY ON A HOT DAY LIKE THIS. WELL, IF THAT'S THEIR IDEA OF A GOOD TIME LET THEM GO AHEAD BUT I'LL JUST SIT HERE AND THINK ABOUT ELIZA CROSSING THE ICE - LET THE REST OF THE WORLD WEAR A COAT OF TAN - I'LL STAY IN THE SHADE AND KEEP MY SCHOOL GIRL COMPLEXION.

THE WEATHER MAN SAYS IT'S 98 IN THE SHADE - HE MUST BE TREATING THE THERMOMETER THAT'S WORKING FOR HIM - I CLAIM IF YOU TREAT A THERMOMETER KIND IT WILL BE GRATEFUL - I NEVER SWEAR AT MY THERMOMETER - I TREAT IT LIKE A PET - THE RESULT IS, IT STAYS AT 40 WHILE THE CEMENT SIDEWALKS ARE MELTING AND THE OTHER THERMOMETERS ARE TRYING TO FIND ROOM AT THE TOP.

ON ME, SAY I'M IN CONFERENCE AND CANNOT BE DISTURBED - TELL HIM I DON'T WANT ANY SUN-STROKES OR SUN-BURN AND IT WON'T DO HIM A BIT OF GOOD TO LEAVE SAMPLES - I'M NOT IN THE MARKET - IT'S A FUNNY THING BUT IT SEEMS TO ME I HEARD SOMEBODY SAY - WE WERE GOING TO HAVE A VERY HOT AUGUST.

Good morning!

Don Q. son of Zorro, entertaining!

Is he Zorro?

Surely you haven't forgotten "The Mark of Zorro," in which Mr. Fairbanks, lithe, lovin' and lectrical, performed marvelous acrobatic and romantic feats in sunny Spain as one Zorro—adopted alike at love and war!

And left his identifying mark after every mysterious, breath-taking episode?

Some boy, Zorro!

Some boy, Don Q!

This sequel to "The Mark of Zorro" is full of stuff—the stuff that the dreams of adventurous youth are made of.

Zorro, who now lives in California, sends his son over to Spain for further education. Already the boy is a wizard with the supple lengths of his long snake whip.

In his father's country Don Q finds himself almost immediately plunged into events, the like of which had enlivened his father's youth—and the picture details colorfully and zestfully the course of these events.

Mary Astor, the delectable vis-a-vis in the romantic episodes, proved herself so delightful in the eyes of the First National that they gave her a contract on the strength of her work as Dolores.

The men in the piece are all splendidly cast, particularly Warner Oland as an old royal party, a good natured, purposeless weaking, whose sudden death precipitates much of the excitement in "Don Q."

Douglas Fairbanks has never been in better form. Physically he is as beautiful and inspiring sight as a race horse. Proof of what care and training can do for the human body. He puts a world of pep into his portrayal of the title role.

"Don Q" is magnificently staged, counts its thrills by the dozens, furnishes plenty to laugh at and has been an enormous box office success wherever it has played. Reckon it's going to carve plenty of notches on its Chicago gun.

See you tomorrow!

Rodeo, Showing Life in Old West, to Be Sally's Next Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Did you see the news, girls and boys, about our party at the rodeo, Aug. 21, a week from next Friday? I'm sure you did—and I know you'll all be anxious to see this show of cowboy life in the old west.

For that's what a rodeo is, you know—a show of the games and contests that cowboys used to have each year at round-up time. Only there's this difference: In the old games, they just had fun with whatever they had at hand, while at this rodeo, they'll have the trickiest animals that have proved their skill in many contests, and the most skillful riders in the country.

It's a world's championship contest, held right here in Chicago—and we can see this big event that the whole west will talk about just by writing winning letters.

For the letters, remember that all I want is to find the hundred girls and boys who will enjoy the party most. And that will mean girls and boys who not only like to see a wonderful display of skill, but who like the west and want to have a glimpse of the life which helped build up our country. And don't forget, either to give your street address, your age, and to have your father or mother sign your letter. You must have all three, or your letter can't win an invitation.

Tomorrow I'll tell you more about the treats in store for us at the rodeo—but you'd better start your letters now. They must be in the mail by Wednesday afternoon, you know, so I can pick the winners next Thursday morning. So get busy, and watch next Sunday's paper for the names of the hundred winners who'll be there at the big Wild West show a week from next Friday!

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question: Marjorie C. Butler, 5755 Elizabeth street, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Would the lure and opportunity of riches have tempted you at sixteen to leave your parents, as they did Mary Spas of New York City?

Where Asked.

Municipal pier.

The Answers.

Mrs. Ed Snyder, 2817 Fletcher street, housewife—They could not have tempted me because I had a good home and good parents. I had good surroundings in every way and plenty of entertainment in the house where our mother could see us. Every girl is not so fortunate, orphans less of all.

Mrs. C. L. Gaul, 2702 Alameda street, housewife—I can't remember back to the time I was sixteen. But that isn't a fair question—a girl of sixteen is likely to do anything if she is that kind of a kid. No, I don't believe I could have been lured to leave home. We were all very proud of our parents.

Gail Williams, Hotel Morrison, business woman—I thought too much of my mother and father for that. Money would never have tempted me. It isn't money that makes happiness. I was born in a poor family, but I was very fond of my mother and father, and for being untruthful she goes back home in a worse condition than when she left it.

Mrs. Henry Goedel, 915 Rush street, housewife—I wouldn't want a daughter of mine to take that step, for more than one reason. People born in one class of society rarely fit into another, for they are not to the manner born, and they are pretty sure to be out of their element.

Sybil Schmidt, 272 Baker street, bookkeeper—Maybe I would, now that I am older and wiser. With the educational advantages I would be worth considering for a few years. But later on there comes a time in every one's life when one feels that the old home is the most wonderful place in the world after all.

STAR 2 YEAR OLDS RTO FACE BARRIER AS IN TITLE RACE

BY FRENCH LANE.

The disputed two year old champion ship at Hawthorne may come up for final decision this week in a $25,000 handicap Saturday afternoon. It is a race at six furlongs, as far as the baby racers have been asked to go this season, and should fast going prevail, all the good ones in the division here will accept the issue.

The bidders for the title include James McGinnis, Russell Gardner, Frederick Graber, Chicago, the Dearborn stable's Phantoms, Camden's Phantom, and Correlation, Herbert G. Shimp's Epimete, and Postmistress, the Jones Stock farm's Captain Seth, along with a few others.

Since 1922 Kentucky Derby Winner, each owner is so confident he has the next Kentucky Derby winner, that the champion of the division in his custody, the race promises to be one of the most lively of the season at Hawthorne. There has been talk at different times of a match between some of the leading youngsters, but if Saturday's contest will be no more of such a special to determine the championship.

Should Russell Gardner be returned to the winner, Owner McGinnis will ship the horse to New York to take part in the Kentucky Derby later in the season. McGinnis runs up to date at Hawthorne the McGinnis colt and Chicago stand out as possibly the best campaigned here.

Two allowance races and four carrying conditions make up the program at Hawthorne today. The last four weeks of the local season get under way. The Seville purse, a dash at six furlongs, is the feature and in the overnight entries has attracted six speedy sprinters. Postillion, a winner at long odds Saturday, will likely be the post time choice as a result of the victory. Her company does not appear nearly as classy as the field she conquered in Saturday's race.

Call Mortensen "New Sande." So, spectacular has been the riding of the youngster at Hawthorne during the last week that the Hawthorne rail birds are beginning to call him the "New Sande." The little fellow has tremendous support on any horse he rides these days, although another apprentice jockey, J. Schaeffer, just in from Canada, has been pressing him for honors of late.

Several stables of horses arrived at Hawthorne yesterday from the Coney Island and Thistle-down tracks in New York. They included the horses owned by Frederick Graber, W. C. Heaton, Arthur Rhoad, C. P. Ross, and others. All, exhausted the stall supply except for stables held in reserve for horses to be sent here for the running of the $20,000 Chicago Special and Labor Day handicap.

GOBS PRACTICE YELLS FOR CREW

Rehearsals of songs and cheers by the 400 boys who will come down from the Great Lakes Naval Training station to cheer the station cutter crew when it meets Culver Military academy and the coast guard in one of the feature races of "The Tribune's" annual water carnival in Lincoln park on Aug. 23 will start this morning. Instruction will be given by Lieut. Johnson and Adj. Terrence O'Straley, both of whom are rowing enthusiasts and who are backing the crew being developed by A. T. "Shoes" Sandus, rowing coach at the station.

MICHIGAN MAILS TICKET BLANKS

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 9.—(AP)—More than 60,000 application blanks for the University of Michigan football games this fall have been mailed out to alumni and former students, the athletic association and Col. today. Director Fielding H. Yost made it clear that though the demand on the part of alumni for tickets is expected to be as keen as ever, the general public has the same right to buy tickets as the alumni.

EVANS, CARTER WIN MATCH

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Chick Evans and Carter, Ernest, defeated each other in a 60 second match at Vancouver in an 18 hole match here yesterday, defeating their opponents 5 and 4. Par for the course is 70.

TRADERS UNEASY OVER CONDITIONS IN WHEAT MART

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat situation in Chicago is strong.

The cash and September options are largely held by one group that took the cash grain on July delivery. This makes the other traders uneasy. Those who are short are nervous and trade leaders have expressed the opinion for several days that wheat prices were high enough for the time being. Still prices moved higher and Saturday saw September at $1.67 1/4, an advance of more than 2c in two weeks and 3c over the high point for the same week last year.

There are many reasons why wheat prices should remain high this season. The primary movement of winter wheat so far has been $2,610,000, compared to 14,000,000 bu below last year. Primary receipts last week were the smallest at this season in more than five years.

Cash wheat is at 25c premium in the various markets. Cash wheat in Chicago is 25c over September, and the latter is above the December, while cash is a premium over May.

Good buying of futures has been on for a few weeks. Public interest has increased and hedging pressure is lighter than in recent years. Stocks of wheat are increasing at visible supply points, but farmers as a whole are not disposed to sell freely and expect higher prices.

Spring Wheat Coming In.

New spring wheat is beginning to move. It is expected that Minneapolis will have about 1,000 cars of wheat today. Chicago is looking for about 1,000 cars of all grain for the same time.

The government report is due in Chicago at three o'clock today. Estimates on winter wheat are for 400,000,000 bu, against 404,000,000 bu last month and 500,000,000 bu last year. Spring wheat is estimated at 250,000,000 bu, against 276,000,000 bu last month and 332,000,000 bu last year and is close to an average.

The total wheat crop is estimated at 660,000,000 bu to 670,000,000 bu, against 660,000 bu last month and 672,000,000 bu last year.

September wheat in Chicago closed Saturday at $1.66 1/4, up 1/4c; December $1.67 1/4, up 1/4c; May $1.67 1/4, up 1/4c for the week. Prices for the week follow:

Estimates on the government report on corn are close to 1,300,000,000 bu, with some 25,000,000 bu higher. The crop has been damaged by heat and drought the past three days. Last month's estimate was 1,295,000,000 bu against 1,427,000,000 bu last year, and five year average of 2,335,000,000 bu. Oat estimates are for 1,250,000,000 bu to 1,310,000,000 bu. Last month it was 1,252,000,000 bu and last year's final was 1,422,000,000 bu. The impression in certain quarters is that the final returns will be a little less than the five year average of 1,235,000,000 bu.

The corn trade is bullish in December, and May are being sold extensively by traders who are bearish, while in September it is about an even break, with the bears talking a larger movement of old corn from the country, and a poor demand, while longs take a reverse view.

September corn closed Saturday at $1.04 1/2, up 1/4c, with good premiums paid for the cash grain, yet it lost 1/4c for the week. December closed $1.04 1/2, up 1/4c, while May finished at $1.04 1/2, up 1/4c for the week. Prices for the week follow:

STOCKS SOAR IN LONDON MARTON
BANK RATE CUT

BY JOHN STEELE.

(Chicago Tribune Staff Service.)

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Much needed

this week had a magical effect on the London exchange. At the end of the week the condition was entirely positive Tuesday's after the bank

Three separate factors were responsible for the exhilarating recovery.

Firstly, the bank rate reduction from four to one-half per cent took markets completely by surprise investments in stocks and gilt were shooting up in every direction.

The depths of a long period, went up naturally, industrials consequently

Then the full effect of the coal settlement's program added to the surplus of the markets all around.

Mining Section Busy.

The third factor influenced the mining market exceptionally following the announcement of an Anglo-American syndicate reconstitution of an agreement for marketing diamonds for the next five years. Under the leadership of Debeers and other diamond producers, the syndicate section spent a busy week.

The operators prophesied that now with the lower bank rate the stock market business will generally continue to expand. The bank of England's rate reduction was not above that of the leading Federal Reserve district, so the operators have some reason to be optimistic more profitably than in America.

Practically the only market falling responded to the week's tonics was oils, which were wholly listless. New York continued to bid petroleum securities and the reported overproduction of the related commodity tended to a bearish disposition.

Foreign Rate Pick Up.

Foreign rates, particularly Argentine,

experienced a week-end rally, and news that the offer of the Cordoba system to Argentina government had been renewed largely affected prices. Engineering reconstruction loans proved more active, but Chinese bonds hesitated over the Shanghai conditions still unsettled.

The boom in rubber shares has gone the way of all booms. The position is understandably momentary, with steadily sagging prices. Tea show signs of increased activity.
